

We drove down into the Duchy of Luxembourg, stopping at castles along the way

Chateau Ansembourg, now a spiritual retreat

The (near) perfect symmetry contributing to spiritual balance

One of a pair of mazes

The chateau was cared for by the visitors as a form of spiritual therapy

A welcome respite after the long cold winter

Castle Hollenfels

a nice place for a picnic, we had the castle to ourselves

And its village

Now these guys are creative landscapers; a mural along a driveway

Castle Schoenfels

Everyone goes to Luxembourg to walk in the Ardennes

Looking into the ancient springs at Hunnebour

Luxembourg is a fortified city built upon a fortress of rock

These guys were living in a men's clothing shop window

This may be the bridge we slept under

Brocante
SECOND-HAND
Food & Drinks

We thought it best not to eat or drink here

It is known for its casements built into the stone

An ancient chapel built into the rock wall at the bottom of the valley

The narrow lanes of the old town

The islot, the heart of medieval Lux

Colorful houses are typical throughout the country, all 1000 sq. miles of it.

Lawn art is universal

A charming Kiwi lass snapped this for us

The lovely pink building with the turret houses the City museum

Heading into the lower city via a gate in the oldest walls.

SCHLOSS BRUNNEN

BRUNNEN

A wall enclosed the valley from the 12th century

These mark the water levels of various floods

the heart of Ducal Luxembourg

Place de Metz

The lounge of our comfortable Hotel

A fun get away, and a nice taste of spring for us
